EULOGIES & MEMORIES

Uncle Dick was always a bit larger than life. I was barely five years old when I met him. I had just arrived in the United States, so he got out a big cowboy hat, put me on his lap, and taught me some new words: "Howdy, pardner!" The tricky thing was to properly tip the hat in time with the greeting, so I got to wear it and practice for a while: "Howdy, pardner!" I don't remember everything from being five, but I sure remember that. He was the most thoroughly American thing I had yet seen. I think Dick and "Marge the Sarge" became replacement grandparents for me while they lived near us those first two years.

So long, pardner. We'll see y'all soon.

I have always been in awe of Uncle Dick's ability to make ANYTHING! As a teenager I thought his orange gull-wing kit car was the coolest thing ever and begged for rides. I never knew anyone who could eat hot & spicy like Dick - he was the champ. Always quick with a joke and a laugh he would pretend to be stern but was really just a teddy bear. I will miss his hugs and booming laugh. My prayers and love to his family. I know he is in a better place together with Jory.

Dick Faucett was my father-in-law, and I will never forget him. He was the most inventive man I ever knew. He could fix almost anything and taught me to believe I could too. He trusted me to marry his daughter 42 years ago, and I grew to love him like my second dad. He was a wonderful grandpa to our children, teaching them to fish, encouraging their creative efforts in art, building and general mischief. He was the fun grandpa. He was a great man in the best of ways. He loved his family, and I will be forever grateful that he welcomed me in. Give Jory a kiss for me, dad.

Love, Syd
